

Part of the principle reason for edge detection is that noise factors cause edges to be represented as blurred ramps as opposed to sharp distinct edges.